Performance Chart

Overview and Outlook

The UAE markets witnessed profit taking activities during the month of September in line with our view in the previous fact sheet. The Dubai Financial market (DFM) experienced a short-term sell off during the month dragging the index down by 2.65%. The decline largely came from banks and insurance sectors.

The Abu Dhabi Securities market (ADSM) also showed negative performance with the index dropping by 0.64%. The decline was across all sectors except for the materials sector that was able to maintain positive performance thanks to cement companies.

Despite this decline in UAE markets your fund succeeded in ending the month unchanged thanks to the current diversification strategy that protected the fund against the market volatility. The fund gained performance in capital goods and industrial sectors because of the overweight in Arabtec Holding, Aramex, and cement companies. On the other hand the performance was adversely affected because of the overweight in Abu Dhabi banks (Abu Dhabi Commercial Bank, and First Gulf Bank) which was the main reason for lagging the benchmark by 0.62%.

We could see a period of sideways trading over the next month, as trading volumes are likely to remain low during the period of Ramadan. Thus we will maintain the same diversification strategy. We expect to see quarter-on-quarter earnings growth during the third quarter, which will improve the sentiments in the medium term. We still believe that the market has significant long-term value. Although it may take some time for the market to make major gains, in our view, the downward correction seems to be over.
